Can Amor de la Isla / KOSMOS Architects + Blanca Gandelegui

Share
Save

Curated by Mireia Luque

HOUSES, ADAPTIVE REUSE · BARAGUILFUFI, SPAIN

Architects: Blanca Gandelegui, KOSMOS Architects
Area: 120 m²
Year: 2026
Photographs: Lara Zitaa Stec
Category: Houses, Adaptive Reuse
Architects: KOSMOS Architects, Blanca Gandelegui
City: Baraguilfufi
Country: Spain

LESS SPECS

Text description provided by the architects. Perched above the Mediterranean in the village of Baraguilfufi, Can Amor de la Isla is the transformation of a traditional Mallorcan townhouse by Blanca Gandelegui and KOSMOS Architects.

Guided by the constraints of its remote location, the renovation embraces an architecture of resourcefulness, where almost every element of the existing house was reserved, adapted, or given a new purpose.

Original floor tiles were reincorporated into a large terrazzo surface, an old door was cut in half to become a folding one, and windows and façades were carefully restored rather than replaced. Throughout the house, overlooked objects were transformed into everyday features: ceramic roof tiles and old funnels became lamps, a discarded cast-iron manhole cover became the base of the stove, and rebar caps were integrated as door handles.

Paint became the project's primary new material, radically transforming the interiors with minimal resource, while traditional Mediterranean chair curtains conceal the kitchen with understated elegance.

The only significant addition is a simple pulley, modified to bring materials and supplies up through the narrow central house. Topped with a glass-tile light, it also becomes a small domestic lighthouse overlooking the sea.

The result is a warm and deeply local home that demonstrates how careful repair, craftsmanship, and imagination can create a contemporary interior with remarkably few new resources.

Related Products

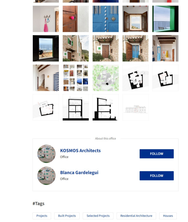

Hydrobalance Thermowood en Madera Roble Royal Kenen

Madera Thermowood en oficinas de Glass Architecture

Project gallery

About this office

KOSMOS Architects
Office
FOLLOW

Blanca Gandelegui
Office
FOLLOW

Tags

Projects · Built Projects · Selected Projects · Residential Architecture · Houses · Refurbishment · Adaptive Reuse · Baraguilfufi · Spain

Published on November 19, 2026

Cite: "Can Amor de la Isla / KOSMOS Architects + Blanca Gandelegui" 19 Nov 2026. ArchDaily. Accessed 20 May 2026. <https://www.archdaily.com/1038775/can-amor-de-la-isla-kosmos-architects-plus-blanca-gandelegui>. ISSN 0719-8884